Project details and features

Customer Requirements

A customer based north of Auckland required a 1 room cabin for camping in while her new house was being built on the block of land.

Pictured to the right: The snug Upland Cabin was ideal for the customers requirements and is used as a sleepout now that the new house has been completed.

Exterior Features

Upland Cabins are a great design with robust construction that is wind, rain and snow deflecting. They are also extremely strong and can be towed around your site as pictured.

Pictured to the right: The customer later added a small room for a toilet to the end of the cabin.

Upland Cabins are a cost effective option with exterior ply and iron cladding. They have an awning to one end which can be extended, a window at the back and your choice of double or single timber doors.

Interior Features

The interior of this cabin was kept simple with ply flooring. The customer choose not to line the interior as the cabin was weather-tight as is.

Upland cabins can be lined and insulated for use in colder conditions.
